This list has 99 of the best free, open source HTML website templates that can help. Before we get to the list, let us take you back to a simpler time. The 1990s. Old school HTML enthusiasts call these "the good old days." Where the only way you were going to get a website up was to hand code it yourself with the help of awesome open source sites like HTML goodies (which surprisingly still exists).This was long before the explosion of solutions like WordPress, Wix, Weebly and Joomla made it easy for any old geezer to install a professional website with a few clicks.Nowadays it's common to use a CMS (content management system) like WordPress or a website building service such as Squarespace without a second thought. These are great solutions that produce high quality sites, but they aren't always the best option. For people who want a simple, lightweight website a CMS can be overkill. Creating a simple site using an HTML/CSS template can offer a few advantages right off the bat.Speed - using a CMS can be heavy on resources, leading to things like longer page loading times.More Control - you can get a site that looks just as good as a WordPress site and it's easier to change things down to the pixel without having to brave the murky tunnels of a complex CMS architecture.Security - it's a fact that hackers and spammers target popular CMS installations because it's easier. Using an HTML template doesn't mean you are completely secure, but you may be less vulnerable to hackers targeting well known security holes.Below is the list of our favorite templates, categorized by type. Check them out. One of them might be just what you're looking for.BusinessAsperion HTML5 - a clean, minimal template geared toward businesses dealing with IT.Bio Farming - a decent template built for sustainable farming. The elements and design are laid out just like a standard landing page for a design agency.Blue Skies - this fixed width website is good for blogging or business.Bootstrap Restaurant - everything you need for a restaurant site including booking, a map, online orders and sliders to showcase menu items.Cafe - it includes high quality images, interesting typography, and mobile first features like the hamburger menu.Corporate Bizz - complete template for a serious corporate site using a dark color scheme.Crossfit - a cool modern theme for any niche related to fitness.
