The Lord's Prayer

Our Father which art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come.
Thy will be done
in earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts,
as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation,
but deliver us from evil:
For thine is the kingdom,
and the power,
and the glory, for ever.
Amen.

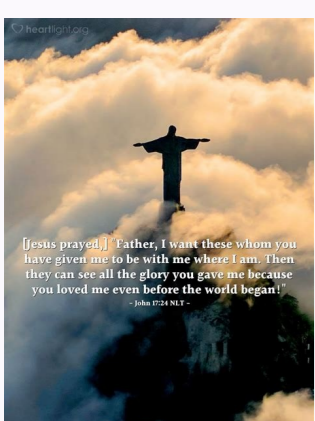

Matthew 6:9-13 KJV

I just want to hear Him say "Well Done".

John Glover Jackson (1907-1993) was an American Pan-Africanist historian, lecturer and author. He wrote books, including Introduction to African Civilizations , The Golden Ages of Africa, Ethiopia and the Origin of Civilization , Was Jesus Christ a Negro? , etc. His earlier booklet, Pagan Origins of the Christ Myth, was published in 1941. [NOTE: I am reviewing the 1965 edition published by American Atheist (AA) Press, with a Foreword by Frank R. Zindler. Editor Frank R. Zindler [and formerly AA acting President] wrote in the Foreword, "John G. Jackson's "Christianity Before Christ" has always been one of the best-selling titles offered by American Atheist Press." Unfortunately, the death of the author in the mid-1990s] froze the book in its present form, with no possibility of issuing an improved edition more accurately reflecting the evolved scholarly opinion of the twenty-first century." Fortunately, almost all the points now being called into question concern the precise antiquity of Egyptian and other African cultural developments." According to the Afrocentric theory incorporated into parts of this book, virtually everything began in Africa, and no matter what the point in question, black Africans did it first." Luckily, even if we reject those questionable details of [the book], the general thesis of the book remain unshaken, viz., that NOTHING is new in Christianity." Jackson begins his Introduction with the statement, "The title of this essay may appear to some to be paradoxical. They might ask: How could there be Christianity before Christ? The great African Church Father, St. Augustine, studied this question and answered as follows: "That which is known as the Christian religion existed among the ancients, and never did not exist; from the beginning of the human race until the time when Christ came in the flesh, at which time the TRUE religion, which ALREADY existed began to be called Christianity." " [Retractions, Bk. I, Ch. xiii] (Pg. 1) He suggests, "The Babylonian and Biblical deluge myths are so similar that they must have been derived from some more ancient common source. In both instances a god warns a virtuous man of the coming of a flood. The man is instructed to build an ark, and take into it people, animals, etc."; the ark in both stories landed on a mountain. After leaving the ark, the survivors offered up a sacrifice to the gods." (Pg. 32) He explains, "We now know that many Saviors antedated the Christian era. A book was published in 1875 by Kersey Graves ["The World's Sixteen Crucified Saviors: of Christianity Before Christ"]; Early in the present century a scholarly Christian clergyman, the Reverend Charles H. Vall, wrote a book with the title "The World's Saviors." In that work he gave the names of about twenty-five Pre-Christian, virgin-born, Savior-Gods, along with the stories of their lives. There is now an extensive literature on the various Savior-Gods. Most of these books have been written by scholars for scholars. The rest of [this] essay will be an attempt to popularize this material so as to make it comprehensible to the intelligent general reader, who does not have an extensive knowledge of comparative religion." (Pg. 38) He states, "In the British Museum there is an ancient tablet from Babylon, dating back to 2000 B.C. This document is a description of a passion play relating to the god Bel. (The same divinity was called Baal among the ancient Hebrews)." (Pg. 43) He provides a number of "parallels," then adds, "This chapter on Bel, the Babylonian Christ, is based on a tablet discovered in the ruins of Babylon by Professor H. Zimmern. The Curator of the Babylonian Section of the British Museum supplied Arthur Findlay with a translation of this document. This material was discussed by Mr. Findlay in his book, "The Psychic Stream," and for further details the reader is referred to that work. Mr. Findlay is an authority on psychical research. He was a founder, and Chairman of the International Institute for Psychical Research." (Pg. 46) However, note that Frank Zindler cautions, "Jackson was not an Assyriologist; he had to rely on secondary or even tertiary sources for his discussion of this most tantalizing topic. More unfortunately, his only source for information concerning the Babylonian passion play is [Findlay's] book." Now a publication by the Psychic Press is not likely to inspire much confidence on the part of Atheist scholars; it is unthinkable that Findlay simply made up the story--despite the fact that John G. Jackson appears to be the only other scholar to have examined it in fifty years." I myself have tried to discover the facts concerning the Babylonian Passion Play. Almost certainly, the "Professor" was Heinrich Zimmer; he authored a work entitled, "The Christ-Myth Controversy" Alas! I have been unable to obtain any of these rare books, and E-mails to the present curator of the Babylonian Collection, have gone unacknowledged." (Pg. xi) Jackson argues, "Krishna was the eighth avatar of the Hindu pantheon and is said to have lived about 1200 B.C. The parallels between the life of Krishna, as recorded in the sacred books of India, and of the life of Jesus Christ, as related in the sacred anthology of the Christians, is so close that some scholars have believed that the Christian writers copied their account from the Hindus. This opinion, has little to recommend it; the most we can say is that both traditions seem to be traceable to a common source." (Pg. 79) He suggests, "Gods and heroes born of virgins were quite common in days of old, and the source of most, if not all of the virgin-born, dying and resurrecting gods seems to have been Egypt." To some readers these opinions may seem farfetched, but I have no doubt of their validity." (Pg. 109-110) He states, "The Egyptian influence on Orthodox Christianity is far more profound than most people realize. All of us have seen the CHI(X)RHOP emblem displayed in many Christian churches, and reputed to be the sacred monogram of Christ. This monogram, originally sacred to Horus, was known in Egypt thousands of years before the beginning of Christianity. The whole Christian Bible was derived from the sacred books of Egypt, such as: "The Book of the Dead," "The Pyramid Texts," and "The Books of Thoth." He asserts, "The Mystery Schools of Egypt were the world's earliest universities. The wise men of ancient Greece went to Egypt for their higher education. Among these men were Plato, Thales, Eudoxus, and Pythagoras. Plato studied in the Nile Valley for thirteen years. The metaphysical doctrines now called Platonic were first taught in the sanctuaries of Thebes, Memphis, and Heliopolis long before Plato was born. The literature of the Egyptian mysteries is not extensive, but there are some surviving fragments which we can study with profit." (Pg. 131) He recounts, "Before concluding this essay, something should be said about the question of the historicity of Jesus Christ. Orthodox Christians recognize him as a god, Unitarians as a man, and Rationalists as a myth. An English scholar, Herbert Cutner, wrote an important and informative book: "Jesus: God, Man, or Myth?" Mr. Cutner, presenting impressive evidence pro and con, finally decided that Jesus was a myth. This may come as a shock to some readers as it did to me when I first came across it in Gerald Massey's lecture on "The Historical Jesus and the Mythical Christ." I tried to refute Massey, but failed completely. The position taken by the great Egyptologist was found to be impregnable." (Pg. 185) Although I greatly appreciated Jackson's other books--particularly those on African history (e.g., Introduction to African Civilizations, and even his "Pagan Origins of the Christ Myth"), I found this one disappointing. His sources here are often of questionable scholarship, and there are much better books now available defending the "Christ Myth" theory, etc. What listeners say about Christianity Before Christ
